

The Centre for Canadian Studies at Mount Allison University invites applications for a non-renewable two-year postdoctoral fellowship. Applicants should have a recently completed Ph. D., or be near completion by the time the appointment takes effect on 1 July 2018, subject to budgetary approval. Prospective candidates should have an active research program in a field relevant to Canadian Studies. The field of research is open, but the Centre particularly encourages applications from those whose scholarship focuses on critical issues in contemporary Canada, among others: Indigeneity, gender, ethnicity, social class, and regionalism, among others.

The successful candidate will have the opportunity to teach at all levels of Mount Allison's academic program in Canadian Studies, over the tenure of this award, and will be involved in the Centre's outreach, scholarship, and co-curricular programs. Normally, teaching includes participation in Canadian Studies team-taught introductory courses and one other course per semester. Canadian Studies is particularly interested in fellows with teaching capacity in a range of areas, including: Indigenous Canada, regionalism, Canadian-American relations, diversity issues, and gender issues. The deadline for applications is April 15. Applicants should submit a letter of application, their curriculum vitae, and arrange to have two letters of reference sent electronically to:

Ms. Faye Lutes
Administrative Assistant
Canadian Studies
Email: flutes@mta.ca

Questions or inquires can also be directed to Dr. Andrew Nurse, Head, Canadian Studies at anurse@mta.ca

Mount Allison acknowledges, honours and respects the Mi'kmaw and Wolastoquyik (Maliseet) peoples, the historic inhabitants, custodians, and dwellers on the land where our university is built, and confirms its commitment to strengthen relationships with them.

Mount Allison is committed to diversity and inclusiveness. We encourage applications from members of racialized communities, Indigenous persons, persons with disabilities, and persons of all sexual and gender identities. We seek candidates with qualifications and knowledge to contribute specifically to the further diversification of our campus community.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents are given priority. Canadians and permanent residents should indicate their citizenship status in their application